Who:

- didn't go away on holiday? (1) _____
complains about their holiday? (2) _____ went on holiday alone? (3) _____ enjoys mixing with new people? (4) _____ had a holiday in a hotel? (5) _____ didn't pay for their accommodation? (6) _____ travelled to different places? (7) _____ went on a family holiday? (8) _____ (9) _____ lived at home during the summer? (10) _____

Four people talk about their summer experiences.

A Henry Everything looked lovely in the brochure when we booked our two-week holiday six months in advance. The photos showed the hotel with a huge pool right next to a golden sandy beach, so we went for it. What a disappointment when we got there, though! We couldn't play in the pool because it was dirty and smelly, and the sea was full of jellyfish and seaweed. The only good thing was the price – everything was included – and we never had to leave the hotel at all, but my parents will check hotel reviews on the internet before they book our next holiday.

B Miranda You feel like you're living a completely different life when you've rented a sailing boat. You feel free. You step off an island with its thousands of tourists and noisy bars and enter a peaceful world where the only sounds you hear are waves knocking against the boat and the wind in the sails – that's if there is any wind. We had three days when my dad had to use the engine to get anywhere – not that that was a problem – if it's calm, you just drop the anchor near a quiet beach and go for a swim. When the wind picks up, you sail on to the next island.

C Josh The idea of camping never really appealed to me because I like a bit of comfort and don't want to have to deal with insects and worse crawling around inside a tent trying to bite me! And what about having to live with hundreds of other people right next to you? Maybe they want to play guitars and sing until sunrise and nobody can sleep. Worse than a cheap student hotel! I found a solution. Just don't go to an organised camping site. I took a tent in August to a small beach for a week's free camping and, despite it being peak season, I was the only one there – absolute paradise. I was happy to have a shower afterwards though when I got back home to my mum.

D Kali When you work at a beach café, as I do for the whole summer in my village, you often envy people who have the time off to travel to different places. Many of my friends are doing that right now and I think about being stuck here. Then I think again and realise it's not so bad. When it's not too busy, I can take half an hour to have a swim or sunbathe. I meet lots of people and I have a lot of fun with the people who work here. We can play whatever music we like and we often end up dancing with the customers late into the night.
